Involved in several European projects Metabody, WhoLoDanceE, Bodynet-Khoros (2022-2024).

The choreographic approach of K. Danse develops a contemporary movement language by the dialectic confrontation between the physical body (lived, experienced) and the visual body (seen, virtual). The performances question the borders between fiction and reality, the social construction of the body, and the psychological structures in human relationships. He explores choreographic composition and its links with computer sciences. Jean-Marc Matos, in close collaboration with other artists, creates immersive performances (Gameplay Level2, Myselves, *Magh, Monster, Metaphorá, etc.), participatory interactive projects RCO, BodyFail, Narcissus Reflected, Errance) and site-specific performances.

The company develops work in four main areas of activity: performance making, mediation, research, and transdisciplinary platform.

Performance making: K. Danse produces performances (full evening long pieces and short pieces), informal and participative performances, inclusive productions, site-specific choreographies for outdoor and architectural spaces, telematics pieces connecting via internet distant cities and countries, VR projects, international collaborations.

Mediation: K. Danse directs numerous workshops on contemporary dance and digital arts, for children and adults, artists and non-artists, disadvantaged youngsters. Other proposals contain meetings with audiences, collaborations with local citizens and artists, lecture demonstrations, master classes on structured improvisation, conferences, open rehearsals, theoretical courses: dance analysis.

Research on Art, Science and Dance: artistic research linked with technological development (partnership with the IRIT, Research Institute in Computer Science, InfoMus Casa Paganini Research Center, Genoa, Italy). European WhoLoDancE project (2016-2018, H2020 program).

Transdisciplinary platforms: Metabody Toulouse \(2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, 2020, 2021,...\), as the expanded local antenna of the Metabody European project (2013-2016), offering each year workshops combining creative research oriented towards young artists and organizing performative events with international invited artists and thinkers / CorpusMedia project (2007-2012): Digital Performance / artistic advice / curator ship.

K. Danse receives financial aid from the Toulouse City, the Ministry of Culture (Drac Occitanie, Dicream/CNC), the Regional Council of Occitanie Pyrénées Méditerranée, the Local Council of the Haute-Garonne, the Toulouse-Metropole Community Area, the French Institute (for touring abroad) and the European Union.

Participatory and site-specific choreographic performance with interaction via smartphones, at will...

RCO is an interactive participatory dance performance, on variable scales, which unfolds according to the physical behavior of audience participation and their reactions instructed via their smartphones. Audiences, as they desire, trigger rules which they discover little by little. Messages, as invitations (in French, Chinese, English, or any other language) are being sent, via a local mobile telephone network (which we provide), on the smartphones of participating audiences.

A unique choreography which adapts itself to the participants, the architectural spaces and the number of dancers-performers.

Castle of Laréole, July 25 and 26, 2015

Site-specific dance performance that invites audiences to move across distances, fields, forests, buildings and proposes people to dance themselves.

Duration: between 20 mn and 30 mn, depending on context

Fées³, within the natural and architectural spaces around the Castle of Laréole, being used for original short choreographies, imagines secret singular stories contextualized by the perspectives offered by the site.

Different dances are experienced by audience members wandering through a parcours composed for them as an invitation. An invitation to travel... Inspired by fairy tales and mythological stories of free Amazons whose spaces carry the sensitive memories, let us be taken by their strength, mystery, magic and fragilities.

Choreography and artistic direction: Anne Holst & Jean-Marc Matos
